through artistic creation

Chulalongkorn University

Located at the heart of Bangkok, Chulalongkorn University is Thailand's first and remains one of the pioneering universities since 1917. Founded by King Vajiravudh in honour of his father, King Chulalongkorn, the university promotes higher education in arts, the humanities and sciences. Recently celebrated its centennial, the university strives to create innovations and train highly qualified personnel to play its part in strengthening the global community at large.

The Faculty of Fine and Applied Arts

The Faculty of Fine and Applied Arts was established in 1983 and today consists of five departments: visual art, creative arts, Thai music, Western music and dance. The faculty prides itself on the production of internationally acclaimed graduates and the significant contributions it has made to the art and cultural industry in Thailand and beyond. The faculty members include prominent National Artists as well as avant-garde designers, artists, practice-led researchers and theorists in the fields of modern art, Thai art, graphic design, fashion history, Western music theory, Western music composition, ballet theory, Thai traditional music, Thai contemporary dance, Thai dance choreography, likay folk theatre, Thai royal court music and music therapy.

Why study expressive arts therapy at Chulalongkorn University?

Expressive arts therapy is a dynamic field in the mental health profession. It is based on the empirical knowledge that the process of artistic creation, under the guidance of a qualified therapist, enables individuals to become more expressive and communicative, develop self-awareness and therefore begin to heal. The practice can be applied to people of all ages. It is especially valuable with clients who have difficulties expressing themselves verbally and is useful in addressing trauma because of art's capacity to express traumatic imagery and experience.

The Master of Arts in Expressive Arts Therapy integrates various media of expression-visual arts, drama, storytelling, dance and movement and so on-to offer therapists a variety of modalities they can apply in their practice that suit the needs of different clients. In this two-year programme, students will acquire knowledge on methods and techniques of expressive arts therapy, research methods, assessment, and ethics in clinical practice, as well as field training under supervision. This is to enable students to develop new and appropriate interventions for varied populations in different settings.

Studying in Bangkok

Chulalongkorn University is located at the very heart of Bangkok. The city is filled with over a hundred art galleries, museums, cultural centres, theatres and creative spaces, making the Thai capital one of the most vibrant art hubs of cultural diversity in Asia. Alive with urban life and contemporary creativity, the university is easily accessed by most public transportation, including buses, the BTS Skytrain and the MRT subway.

The Faculty of Fine and Applied Arts benefits greatly from its location in the university's cluster of humanities faculties. It is flanked by the Faculty of Architecture and the Faculty of Arts and is in close proximity to cultural facilities including the Chulalongkorn University Auditorium, the Chulalongkorn University Museum, and the Sodsai Pantomkomol Centre for Dramatic Arts. Students with intellectual curiosity and interest in art and culture will enjoy a stimulating academic environment and the many cultural activities offered all year-around on campus.

Apart from art and culture, Bangkok is a leading medical hub in Asia, thanks to the Thai government's efforts to promote health tourism. Chulalongkorn University has contributed significantly to the development of the country's medical and health research and services through its Faculty of Medicine, the second oldest medical school in Thailand, and Faculty of Psychology. In addition, the university is connected to the King Chulalongkorn Memorial Hospital, which serves as a teaching hospital for the university's medical students and will be a training placement for this programme.
